STAGES OF CATTLEYA GROWTH FROM SEED POD TO FLOWERING PLANT

HOME GROWING

You Have a Place to Grow Orchids

As house guests, orchid plants leave almost nothing to be desired. They are adaptable, pleasant to behold, and a source of constant interest and delight. Their "guest room" might be over the sink in the kitchen, in the living room, or in a sunny enclosed porch—any place about the home where the temperature does not go, roughly, below 50° F.

We give below a few simple directions for the better known families in the orchid tribe. Should you want more detailed information, write for our free folders for specific information or purchase one of the excellent recent books on orchids you will find listed on page 21 of this catalog.

To Find a Growing Area

Select a bright window in your home, removed from drafts, where your plant will get morning and afternoon DIRECT sun. The plants need be protected only from burning, midday summer sun in a window collection. If you have one of the newer picture windows, you may adjust for the additional light by placing your plants back 18 to 36 inches from the window, but KEEP YOUR GROWING AREA BRIGHT.

In colder areas, it may be necessary at times to move the plant back a few inches from the windows, as protection from the freezing glass.

Providing Extra Humidity

In the growing area you may set the pots on pebbles in a tray, as illustrated on the next page. Keep the pebbles wet, but water level should be below the surface of the pebbles, except immediately after watering so the air will circulate under the bottom of the pot, and pick up moisture from the pebbles. Exceptions to this rule are Cyripediums and Cymbidiums, both of which may rest in the water for some time with beneficial results. You may use any sort of pebbles you wish. We have small packages available (see page 21) but any gravel which may be available in your locality will be fine.

Temperature Requirements

Orchids are not the delicate plants most people think they are. Within loose bounds, they will adapt readily to conditions offered by any modern house. Usually, for growing purposes, we group them into three temperature classes.

THE MEDIUM TYPES are represented by Cattleyas, Epidendrums, mottled leaf Cyripediums, and such lesser types as Oncidiums, and others. The ideal minimum is 62° F. nights, with days in the upper 70's. Considerable OCCASIONAL deviations will have no effect, since most orchid plants adapt themselves so readily to temperature conditions, just as they do in their native habitat.

THE COOL TYPES are represented by the Odontoglossum grande, Cymbidiums, and plain leaf Cypripediums, among others, and should be kept five degrees cooler than the medium types.

THE WARMER TYPES are represented by the Phalaenopsis and Vandas. They should be kept five degrees warmer than the medium types.

To Water Your Orchids

Again, not all orchid plants have the same moisture requirements. They may be grouped into three categories, according to their differing needs:

CATTLEYAS, LAELIOCATTLEYAS, BRASSOLAEIOCATTLEYAS, ONCIDIUMS, etc., are epiphytes, or "air-rooted" types, with built-in water tanks called pseudobulbs. They like a thorough watering, with a chance to dry out between waterings. In normal weather, a 6-inch pot of this type will need a copious watering about every five days or so. In very hot, dry weather, the five-day period may be decreased to three or four, and in cool, wet weather, increased to six or seven. Plants potted in Wonderbark (all of ours of this type are) must be watered twice as frequently as those planted in osmunda. The coarser the bark the more often they must be watered.

PHALAENOPSIS, and VANDAS, while also epiphytic, do not have the built-in water tanks for storage, and their requirements are about the same as any ordinary house plant. Water enough to keep the potting mixture DAMP but not DRIPPING at all times.

CYPRIPEDIUMS and CYMBIDIUMS are yet another type. These are known as semi-terrestrials, or terrestrials, which means "earth-rooted," and they need an abundance of moisture at the roots to do well. Unlike the other two groups, they do not mind wet feet and the bottom of the pots may stand in water for some time after watering.

In watering all types, just pour the water into the top of the pot, or you may dunk the pot to the rim and drain in the sink or on the tray of pebbles. Much will seem to drain through the drainage hole in the bottom, but more is retained by the porous, absorbent potting mixture than you would think. In determining when to re-water you may use the Moisture Comparator (see page 20) or a practical test is to feel the potting compound, not just the surface, but stick your fingers into it. It will feel harsh and dry to the touch if it needs water. If still damp, your fingers will note the moisture.

Feeding Your Orchids

Most orchids suggested today for the home are potted either in chopped or shredded fir bark, such as our own WONDERBARK, or osmunda. How much and how often you feed is determined by which type potting material is used. Plants potted in WONDERBARK should be fed two or three times as often as those planted in osmunda.

For feeding the plants, use any of the new, totally water soluble commercial orchid feeds, as listed on page 21 of this catalog. Just add the fertilizer to the regular watering, following manufacturer's directions as to concentration. Also, when you water, do not be afraid to run water through the pot to rinse away excess deposits of feed (salts).

Repotting Your Plants

When the plant growth outgrows the pot, or every two years, it is time to repot. Most plants today are potted in WONDERBARK (fir bark), rather than the traditional osmunda, because the bark mixtures are as simple to use as ordinary soil, and do not require the special techniques of osmunda. See inside of back cover for the easy 1, 2, 3, 4 steps, or write for our folder.

Above All, Enjoy Your Plants

When the plant is in bloom, you may remove it to any part of the house best suited as a background for its beauty. Leave the pebbles and gravel behind in the growing area, and try one of the attractive cover pots advertised on page 22 of the catalog, or perhaps you would prefer an expandable bamboo sleeve, illustrated on page 20. This is your big moment, make the most of it. Then when the blooms fade, clip back just the flower stem itself, without cutting leaves or bulbs, and return the plant to the growing area for the next year's blooms to develop.

Orchids are free from plant pests, and almost never will they need spraying of any sort. If you think they may, write, describing symptoms, and your present care. We are glad to give this information FREE OF CHARGE at any time.

FLOWERING CATTLEYS

As priced below, these plants are shipped in bud when ordered in season, potted, and ready to grow. Should you wish to take advantage of our special Do-It-Yourself offer, you can save shipping charges by having plants sent out of season, and out of pot—usually about 20% on prices listed below.

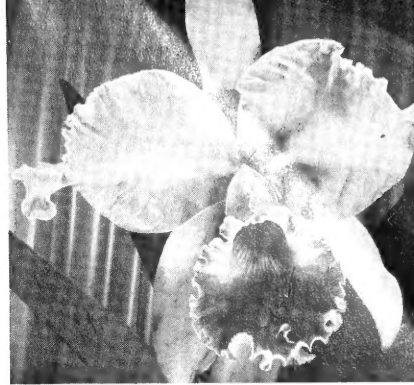

Our prices are based, first, on the SIZE and QUALITY of blooms; secondly, on the number of leads, and to some extent, the size of the pot. Various combinations of these factors result in price RANGES for the same pot size.

When two prices are shown opposite a pot size, intermediate prices are available. IT WILL SAVE TIME IN FILLING YOUR ORDERS IF YOU WILL STATE THE RANGE OF PRICES ACCEPTABLE FOR ANY VARIETY SELECTED, AND WHETHER OR NOT WE MAY SUBSTITUTE.

BONUS PAGE

ONE PLANT FREE FOR EVERY TWO YOU PURCHASE FROM THIS PAGE

For every two plants ordered from the listing below, we will send another hybrid Cattleya equal in value to the average price of the two purchased, which we will select from our ranges, under the following rules:

1. We reserve the right of substitution.
2. We guarantee to send a plant of equal or better quality as the bonus plant, or as a substitution, but all free plants will be colored as the supply of whites is limited.
3. All plants in a single shipment must go to the same address.

Since the supply of plants is strictly limited for each listing, it would be wise to send us several alternate choices. All plants are first quality, hybrid Cattleyas, which will make better-than-average additions to any collection. We are making this offer only to clear out small lot varieties, to reduce the cost of inventory. These plants should be shipped "bud in sheath." This may not be possible because of the small lots.

REGULAR QUANTITY DISCOUNTS DO NOT APPLY

Pot Sizes: Five-, six- and seven-inch pots.

For those of you who are searching for the "different" orchid, one or more of these plants is a "must." We have gathered this fine collection of unique orchids and strong growing, long lasting, prolific, showy types of species from all over the world, and have held them in our ranges until re-established. These delightful plants are shipped in pots and when ordered in season, in bud. When ordered out of season and out of pot, the special Do-It-Yourself terms apply.

We particularly draw your attention to the intergeneric crosses as well as the novel crosses that bring together the influences of diverse areas into a progeny entirely new to the world.

The number after the description indicates flower size in inches, disregarding the varieties having long pendent sepals.

The name of the country is where the plant originated and the season is the time of blooming.

Cool, average or warm denotes the relative temperature requirements of the orchid in the glasshouse or in the home as explained on page 4 under Temperature Requirements.

WONDERBARK

"If you're not using WONDERBARK, you're working too hard."

At last, a product to take the tedium out of potting! No doubts now as to whether you have potted properly.

STEP 1—Select a clay pot which allows enough space for the new growth, hold the plant with the back bulb part held tightly against the inside of the pot about one inch below the rim, with the rhizome more or less horizontal.

STEP 2—Pour the Wonderbark about the roots of the plant, being sure to fill the space at the bottom of the pot first. Fill the pot to overflowing.

STEP 3—Press the Wonderbark down around the plant, thumping the pot on a table to set the Wonderbark into the interstices.

STEP 4—Push the wire stake to the bottom of the pot, avoiding the roots, if possible. Loosely tie with string below the leaf.

Subsequent care is the same as with conventional potting material, except that you must feed regularly with one of the special orchid fertilizers, recommended on page 21. Follow manufacturer's directions as to use.

Wonderbark is a big boon to orchid growers. It is the shredded or chopped bark of the abies concolor. Results with all types of orchids to date have been outstanding—unprecedented root growth, fine, hard foliage growth, and good, strong flower production—ALL AT LESS COST, TIME AND EFFORT on the part of the orchid grower.

GRADES: Two grades for adult plants.

Grade M ($\frac{1}{4}$ to $\frac{1}{2}$ inch) for small plants and small roots.

MISCELLANEOUS

We sell glasshouses of aluminum and redwood, write us for information.

We are extremely interested in expanding our commercial mailing list. Anyone wishing to grow orchid seedlings qualifies to receive our commercial mailings. Write to have your name placed on this list.

Rod McLellan, internationally recognized authority on Orchids, inspecting cymbidiums on his "Acres of Orchids"

Ten years ago, it was considered unorthodox for a commercial grower to divulge the secrets of orchid growing. Today there are few that will not share their knowledge with everyone. There are more than one hundred Orchid Societies throughout the United States. We give information about them to our customers because it is through these societies, and by informal conversations and personal experiences that growing orchids in the home has been accepted and popularized.

The success of growing orchids in the home was originally envisioned by us several years ago just as we now predict that the small, automatically heated and ventilated glass-house will have a tremendous increase in popularity for the modern suburban home.

I also believe that orchid plants will become one of the most treasured gifts for Christmas, Easter, Mother's Day, anniversaries, birthdays, and for the hospitalized. The popularity of orchid plants in recent coming out parties indicates that they are a favorite with the "social set."

Here at "Acres of Orchids" we have two free tours daily, at 10:30 and 1:30, but special arrangements will gladly be made for our friends from a distance and for larger groups. The enthusiasm of the thousands of visitors we have annually at our 37 acres of orchids and flowers is overwhelming, and could hardly have been visualized by my father when he started growing a few orchids as a hobby almost 70 years ago.

We are now the largest hybridizers of orchids and one of the largest orchid houses in the world, shipping the most advanced quality orchids to all areas of the world. Too, we supply everything necessary for growing orchids, from the smallest accessory, i.e., stakes and string, to large, completely equipped greenhouses.

It is our sincere desire to be of service to our customers not only in the selection of quality plants at the best possible prices, but also by providing any cultural information we can concerning orchid growing.
